DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 12-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Romerein et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,638,035).

Regarding claim 12, Romerein discloses an RF broadband signal tap for receiving and transmitting RF signals comprising a first and second signal I/O ports, a directional processor having a reception port and a transmission port, and the ports being arranged such that the directional processor may be positioned in either of two positions, wherein a first position is to receive RF signals in a forward direction, and a second position is to receive RF signals in a reverse4 direction whereby the first I/O port is coupled to the reception port and the second I/O port is coupled to the transmission port (Figs. 1-4, col. 2/line 34 to col. 3/line 67 as direction coupler as a directional processor for coupling to input and output ports for receiving and transmitting RF signals and technique of reversing the signal direction without ever need to remove the signal tap cover).

As for claim 13, Romerein discloses wherein the I/O ports comprises at least two coaxial receptors (Fig. 3, and col. 7/line 40 to col. 8/line 9 for coaxial cable receptors addressed).

As for claims 14, 15 and 16, Romerein discloses the first and second signal I/O port are maintained in position by a housing and each has a connector extending inwardly toward one another from opposing sides of the frame and further extend in opposite directions from the housing frame for connection with a coaxial cable coupling (as shown in Figs. 1 & 2 as coaxial cable 26 coupled to both opposite sides of the housing frame of the signal tap 10 comprising I/O ports as at "AP" and "PP" or "CP" parts for extending coupling to coaxial cables, see col. 7/lines 40-65).

As for claims 17-18, Romerein discloses the CATV directional component further comprising a front and rear cover member mounted upon opposite sides of the housing frame for enclosing the directional processor and I/O signal ports and the front cover member sustains the directional processor in either first and second positions (i.e., without removing the tap cover) (Figs. 1-4 for a lid cover and "top" and "bottom" parts refer to front and rear covers with the lid as the front cover, and col. 7/lines 25-65 for further details, and as already noted in col. 3/lines 35-67, the RF signals can be reversed using the reversible coupler).

As for claims 19-35, these claims with same limitations as addressed earlier are rejected for the reasons given in the scope of claims 12-18 as discussed in details above.
